ABOUT

I started this blog in December 2012 firstly as a creative outlet for me to express my love for Great Britain, vintage design and food. Soon, the blog transformed into a whole new thing and I started writing about my journeys to European countries, beauty and for a year I've also been blogging about books I'd like to recommend. I love writing and sharing the good things in life and this blog has become my personal opportunity to share the things I love and adore. The things I present on the blog are of personal value for me, hence I don't just review them, but create stories around them, to show what they really mean to me and to give the product my personal touch.

BLOG STATISTICS

Since being a full time worker and only blogging for fun, I don't have as many hits as most of the full time bloggers of course. Still, if you are looking for quality texts, honest reviews and a personal touch, I would be honoured to work with you. In 2016 the hits have decreased due to a new job and less time for blogging.

All texts and reviews are based on my personal experiences, hence they sometimes also contain negative aspects. All cooperations/ sponsored products and tests/reviews are clearly marked with an asterisk and all links are labelled as no-follow.
